THE NATIONAL DEBT.

The monthly statement of the public debt, at the close of business on the last day of May, shows it to have been $996,684,072, a decrease of $1,560,80, for the month of May. The interest-bearing debt was $347,365,030; the debt on which interest has ceased $1,348,510; the debt bearing no interest $378,084,324; total $1,226,797,864.

The cash in the treasury consists of $181,707,391 in gold; $519,764 in silver; $147,894,920 in paper; bonds, etc., $18,129,555; total $867,496,826. Against this cash there are demand liabilities amounting to $637,383,013, leaving a net cash balance of $230,113,812 in the treasury.

The outstanding liabilities against the cash in the treasury consists principally of silver certificates and treasury notes, now in circulation. Both silver certificates and treasury notes are redeemable in coin, gold or silver, but the policy of the administration is and has been to redeem the treasury notes in gold only. These notes were issued for the silver bullion purchased under the act of July, 1890, the greater part of which is yet in the treasury uncolored. When treasury notes are presented at the treasury for redemption they are redeemed in gold and if there is not enough gold on hand to meet the demand, bonds are issued to replenish the stock. If the notes were redeemed in gold or standard dollars at the option of the Secretary of the Treasury, as the law provides, and the Secretary should use his option and pay out silver, coining the bullion when necessary for that purpose, no bonds would have to be issued there would be more money in circulation and the country would be more prosperous. That policy, however, would be in the interest of the people and against the gold trust, which must be given opportunity to collect its contributions to Mr. Hanna's campaign fund with asurious interest regardless of consequences to the masses of the people.

BUSINESS AND PROSPERITY.

The San Francisco Bulletin, which changed front on the financial question at the time of Mr. Hanna's St. Louis convention, says the people are doing more business, and consequently are more prosperous than they imagine or are aware of. This reminds us of the merchant, who upon being complimented upon the large business which he seemed to be transacting, said: "I sell my goods below cost and that attracts customers." "How," said the friend, "can you pay expenses if you conduct business in that way?" "Because," said the merchant, "I sell so much." That is generally the way with the business of the country today. There may be a good deal of business transacted but when farmers and others are selling what they produce below the cost of production, they cannot be prosperous, though like the merchant they may sell a great deal. The exports of wheat, corn, cotton, beef, pork and silver during the last year exceeded in quantity the exports of these products a dozen years ago, but the prices paid for these products by foreign countries in the last year are much less than when the exports were not so large. The farmer, who by reason of the adoption of the gold standard, has to sell his products for about one-half what he received for them when silver bullion brought $1.29 an ounce, cannot be as prosperous now as he was then. His farm produces no more now than it did then, and a dollar now will not pay any more debt than it did then, and, though he may apparently be doing as much business now as then, he is certainly making no money, while he is selling what he produces at or below the cost of production. The volume of business is no indication of prosperity. An auctioneer who is disposing of property at sheriff's sale, generally does a lively business, but as he usually sells below cost, the debtor, who is being sold out, does not profit by the volume of business at the sale.

REPUBLICAN members of Congress are beginning to chafe under the despotism of Czar Reed, who will not appoint committees nor permit the House to transact any business whatever, except what meets his approval. Representatives of the people feel that they are unworthy the name so long as they tamely submit to this autocratic decree and an outbreak is threatened more dangerous than that at San Quentin and one which cold water will not suppress.

The suppression of the riots at San Quentin prison with war process that cannot be more efficacious than bullets. The desperate men who were confined in the outdoor, were not intimidated by rifle and machine gun, but they could not without water under good pressure, and begged for mercy when the hose was turned on them.

A WAVE of Hanna prosperity has struck that hotbed of goldbugism, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, where $2,500 men have gone out on a strike for living wages. These men, not one of whom, according to all reports saw a gold piece in a decade, voted for gold standard prosperity last November and now are getting their fill of it.

A clean strong wholesome liniment, Trib fulfills all promises.

MCKINLEY AND WANAMAKER.

Their Meeting in Philadelphia Very Cool.

PHILADELPHIA, June 4.—"How are you?" said John Wanamaker, ex-Postmaster General, to President McKinley yesterday. It was the first time the two men had met since Wanamaker's famous speeches last month, in which he criticised severely the President and his administration.

McKinley turned around slowly, surveyed the Philadelphian from head to foot in a calm, retrospective manner and then replied reservedly: "I am very well, thank you."

There was no joyousness to his voice and there was no outstretched hand to grasp that of the pessimistic merchant, who realized that even Presidents are aware of being roasted and are unwilling to press the digits of the roaster.

Wanamaker hastened to make good lost ground. With a cheerful smile he said blandly: "Well, we are all good Republicans, anyway." It was meant to be conciliatory, but it failed lamentably.

"I don't know about that," said McKinley curtly, and as Wanamaker flashed up friends took part in the conversation and, making it more general, relieved it of that personal aspect it was fast assuming.

Last month when President McKinley was in Philadelphia Wanamaker at a banquet of business men deplored the stagnant condition of trade and attributed it directly to McKinley and his administration. He said the Chief Executive had made plenty of promises, but had not kept them.

About the same time McKinley was at another banquet speaking of the great advance trade had made under the Republican administration. The two speeches, side by side, made very interesting reading for the people of the United States the next day.

A few days ago in Chicago Wanamaker made the same charges against the administration.

Warden Has Six Months Longer to Live.

FOLSOM, June 4.—Warden Aull last evening received a telegram from the Attorney General advising him not to hang S. D. Worden to-day. Aull notified the condemned man and had the gallows taken down. As a State official, the Warden says he will be governed by the opinion of the Attorney General. No further action is likely to be taken until the meeting of the United States Supreme Court in October. When Worden learned that he was not to be hanged to-day he was almost delirious with joy. The announcement of the stay, he said, made him more delirious than when he would have been on the gallows. He has been returned to his cell in murderer's row.

Murderer Butler Reaches Australia.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 4.—The Oceanic Steamship Company's Mariposa arrived yesterday morning from Sydney, Auckland and Honolulu. She left San Francisco April 3d with murderer Butler. He gave the three colonial officers no trouble on the voyage, but repeatedly told them he would never be landed alive. The hour he was taken from the steamer was unknown to the great crowd that had assembled at Sydney. On his way to prison Butler said he had ample money in England with which to pay attorneys, but when locked up in a cell in Sydney he said he was penniless. The Attorney General thereupon furnished him counsel.

TRIB TESTIMONIALS.

How One of Them Came to be Written.

James McDonald, superintendent of the Sierra Lakes Ice Co., is a gentleman whom many people know. He employs from three hundred to five hundred workmen, up in the heart of the Sierras, in and around the little town of Boca, which takes its name from the Spanish—Boca, i. e., mouth. The "Little Truckee" dashing down, here joins its larger namesake.

A traveler who stepped off the train there one morning last week had no difficulty in placing a stock of Trib in the company store. When Mr. McDonald saw the sample package he said he had used several bottles of the liniment and it had served him so well in a serious case that he had perfect confidence in it.

A testimonial was suggested. He refused at first, fearing additional notoriety. When the value of his experience to the public was urged he consented, and gave the Trib agent this:

Boca, Cal., May 26, 1897.

Trib Company—GENTLEMEN.—I have often wondered why people would give their names to patent medicine makers for publication. Certainly I never expected to do so. Some weeks ago I was laid up with a very severe stone bruise on my ankle. I lay in bed helpless for six days. I had at hand all the liniments and other common means for curing bruises. I used them. They gave me no help. A railroad man told me about Trib. I bought a bottle and used it—two bottles—three bottles. It cured me. I have discarded my crutches. Now I know why people write testimonials. Trib is the only liniment for me. Use this, and welcome. Yours truly,

JAMES McDONALD,

Supt. S. L. I. Co.

written statement, Mr. McDonald said:

"I don't know much about testimonials, but this one is honest. I had used fourteen bottles of the best extract of witch hazel, which I believe to be a good thing. But it didn't reach. Then I used other liniments—good liniments, too—one fine horse liniment, till my nurse's hands were skinned, and my foot blistered; then arnica and such things. I doubted if I'd ever have good use of that leg again. It was Freight Conductor Rogers or the Southern Pacific who told me about Trib—said his wife always kept it in the house. Now I'm ready to tell people. You may refer to me just as often as you like, and every one who writes to me will be answered to the effect that the testimonial given you is true in every particular."

THE GRAND JURY'S REPORT ON THE FUMIGATION BILL.

Balm Poured on the Wounded Feelings of Public Officials at an Expense of $51 a Day.

The Grand Jury at a specially called meeting to inquire into the alleged charges regarding the notorious fumigation bill allowed by the Commissioners, vetoed by the Auditor and the latter's veto subsequently sustained filed a report yesterday. The illegality of the bill is admitted, but the belief of the Grand Jury is that the Board of Commissioners acted in the best interests of the community. The Auditor is commended for promptly vetoing the bill, as well as the Board of Commissioners for sustaining the Auditor's veto, and the latter excused for their previously illegal act on the ground that they acted in good faith.

The report is submitted with these few comments believing that the people throughout the county have opinions regarding this matter that even the report of the Grand Jury will have little or no effect upon:

RENO, Nevada, June 4, 1897.

To Judge A. E. Cheney—The Grand Jury makes report as follows:

We have examined into the charge made by publication in the NEVADA STATE JOURNAL alleging certain illegal acts of the Board of County Commissioners and find as follows after examining several witnesses. A child died at the Clarendon Hotel in this city on the 21st day of February, 1897, of malignant scarlet fever, that there was great danger of the disease spreading and that the attending physician notified the Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners of the danger and advised him of the necessity of having the premises and clothing in the rooms immediately and thoroughly fumigated and that after further consultation the Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners requested the attending physician to have the necessary fumigating properly done, that the danger of the spreading of the disease might be averted. That the arrangement was made with Dr. McN. Miller to do the fumigating, that it was accordingly done in a thorough manner by him and under his supervision. Subsequently at a meeting of the Board of County Commissioners held April 7, 1897, Dr. Miller presented a bill for $76 15, that said bill was unanimously allowed by said Board, and was later properly vetoed by the Auditor and that at later meeting of the Board the Auditor's veto was sustained.

While we commend the action of the Auditor in refusing to draw his warrant in payment of this bill and believe there was no law authorizing its payment we believe the Chairman and other members of the Board of County Commissioners acted in good faith and for the best interests of the people of this community in thus taking prompt action in preventing the spread of a dangerous and generally fatal disease.

W. O. H. MARTIN, Foreman.
F. McRAE, Secretary.

JACK O'DIAMONDS.

The Shaw Company is More Pleasing Than Ever

Sam T. Shaw and Jossie Shirley opened a week's engagement here last evening. The Shaw company has always been popular here and it was plain to be seen from the appearance of the troupe on its arrival that its organization had been improved since it played here a year ago. The street parade yesterday was a drawing card. The band was excellent. In consequence of all this the audience which greeted the Shaw company when the curtain rose was a large one. The orchestra is good and plays popular music.

"Jack o' Diamonds," the play presented last evening, gives the members of the company ample scope. Sam T. Shaw as Jack o' Diamonds, the gambler, was fully up to the standard of good acting maintained heretofore by that gentleman when he appeared in this city. Miss Shirley, the leading lady, in a sympathetic role, carried the audience by her clever work. The theater-loving people of the Comstock have a treat in store for them at Piper's Opera House during the coming week.

During the third act Mr. Shaw was called before the curtain and announced that to-night "Dad's Girl" would be produced in a superior way.—Enterprise.

Bryan Coming.

Chairman J. R. Ryan of the Democratic State Central Committee writes John Dennis that he has received a reply to the letter inviting Hon. W. J. Bryan to address the people of Nevada at Reno, either on his trip to or from California. Mr. Bryan regrets that his engagements will not permit him to stop over for a day, but that he will leave Ogden at 2 A. M. on July 24, and will be pleased to meet his friends at the depot during the time the train stops over at Reno. He will arrive there at 10 P. M. on the 31st of July, and doubtless a large number of persons will assemble to greet the champion of the silver cause.

When she was a child, she used to be called Castoria. When she became Miss, she changed to Castoria. When she had children, she gave them Castoria.

The Grand Jury Commends the Auditor and Excuses the Commissioners.

The Grand Jury was called together by its Foreman yesterday presumably to consider the action of the Board of Commissioners in allowing a bill of $76 15 for fumigating the rooms of a public hotel, subsequent to the death of a child with scarlet fever and for which it is claimed by the Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, H. H. Beck, that the honesty of the Board was questioned in a criticism published in the JOURNAL of the 8th of April of this year.

The report of the Grand Jury is published in another column and will be taken up by sections.

First it says "we have examined into the charges made by publication in the NEVADA STATE JOURNAL alleging certain illegal acts of the Board of Commissioners, etc."

In the article referred to there were no charges made unless the heading "Boodle Rampant" could be construed into a charge. As far as this was concerned, the heading was quoted from an article written by Mr. Beck a little over a year ago, condemning the District Attorney and Board of Commissioners at that time, and quotation marks were used and the heading recognized by the press of the State, although a year had elapsed, as one of Mr. Beck's favorite expressions.

Further than this there is nothing that can be construed into a charge, but the article simply stated the facts concerning the bill and its allowance by the Board, and asks whether the Auditor has the backbone that he had been given credit for, to veto it.

Subsequently it was vetoed and the veto sustained and this action simply published as a matter of news.

The report goes on and details the employment of Dr. McN. Miller to perform the work of fumigation and the completion of the work. During the investigation, why didn't the Grand Jury inquire into the statutory provisions as well as the town ordinance regarding the liability of persons for moving bedding, furniture, etc., through the streets from a building or rooms where had occurred a case or cases of infectious disease? Why did the Grand Jury put the county to an expense of $51 to simply appease the wounded feelings of officers who are public servants and necessarily subject to criticism?

The legality of the bill of $76 15 for fumigation was questioned by the JOURNAL and its illegality admitted by the Grand Jury, yet the latter creates an expense of $51 to the taxpayers simply to inquire into the criticism of a newspaper on the action of public servants.

The Grand Jury goes on in its report and while commending the action of the Auditor in vetoing the fumigation bill admits the illegality of the action of the Commissioners, but excuses them on the ground "that the members acted in good faith in preventing the spread of a dangerous disease."

The JOURNAL has no desire to continue this controversy, but is willing that the public should judge of the merits of the matter. When the article was published it was simply presented as news, and as long as the columns of the JOURNAL had been open to Mr. Beck to freely criticize the acts of public officials, it followed the same course with that gentleman as a public officer and gave him a dose of his own medicine out of the spoon that had been used on previous occasions, not expecting that it would act as such a violent emetic.

The JOURNAL has taken the pains to preserve the clippings on this fumigation matter from the various newspapers throughout the State showing what disinterested people thought of it, and if it becomes necessary to defend its position they will be reproduced.

A Prison Revolt That Did Not Materialize.

An attempted revolt at the Folsom State Prison was nipped in the bud last Tuesday. It had been arranged that when the three hundred convicts employed on the rock crusher returned to work at noon they were to strike and refuse to go to work. Warden Aull learned of the projected mutiny and waited until a few minutes before the hour when he issued the order to shoot down the seven ringleaders, whose identity had been found out, at the first sign of revolt. The convicts were taken completely by surprise at the turn of affairs and there was no signal to strike and they proceeded to work as usual.

A Wide-open Town.

"A wide-open town" is what the railway conductors called Elko after taking in the sights last Saturday. There were 490 in the party and they had to stay here two hours on their way east. All the saloons were open and many games of chance were in full blast. Many of the ladies of the party accompanied the men to the saloons and watched the games. One conductor lost $13 showing his wife how to play faro. It was a great night out, and many tales will be told in eastern homes of the "wide-open" town of Elko.—Treg Press.

The Dexter Mine Superintendent Arrested.

Superintendent Linnell of the Dexter Mining Company at Tuscarora was arrested Thursday. It was reported that he had skipped, but this was an error. It is reported that a former assayer of the mine turned State's evidence, implicating Linnell in the robbery of $40,000 worth of bullion.

The Viavi Cause.

It is impossible to take Viavi into the system without benefit. It is purely vegetable and as a nerve and tissue builder has no equal. It can be used with perfect safety by the most delicate, and is used upon the smallest children.

Patrons of the remedy can consult our physicians free of charge. I will take pleasure in explaining its various uses to all who may call.

Your Bright Mind.

Here is a funny and a true story. Four Chicago newspaper men were invited to the wedding of one of their craft in New York. At first each man was doubtful about the policy of going, but when it became evident that they could make up a quartet party for traveling the aspect of affairs was changed. They decided that as they would have a jolly journey they would all go. I believe they planned to play whist or some such game all the way from Chicago to Gotham, barring the eating and sleeping time. What a delightful outlook. But on the morning of the departure, when they assembled, lo! they found that one of them had secreted himself in a hotel and remained in Chicago.

Noted by a Woman.

Mrs. Mary G. Goshgob, New York, says: "I have used a device which has enabled me to travel in my own car, and I have been able to immediately detect and stop the vehicle when it is running in any direction desired. This invention has been exhibited at recent horse shows and its practicality thoroughly demonstrated. Miss Goshgob is an artist and has lately returned from a five years' course of study in Paris."

Jack's Mind.

"If I only had a place to put all the mud I get on my shoes and clothes playing outdoors these days, I'd soon own a couple of acres—wouldn't I, mamma?" observed Jack as he prepared to retire for the night.—Harper's Bazar.

There is no doubt, a general tendency in the English and under the pressure of the time, to give influence which the late John Appleton called "the whip of the sky," to overlook and attempt to do much, but I do not see the smallest evidence that this has any particular bearing on the present relation or on the relation of the future. Under the present method of doing things—an imperfect method which practically dates from the time when the school system was first introduced to leave her business for the time in order to drop her child into the box that to post a letter at the street corner. As for the present time, it is primarily for her that the school is held.—T. W. Higginson in Boston Herald.

For one as an exception for women may not seem attractive to ladies of culture and refinement, but it has been found that these young women in the future that it is both a lucrative and enjoyable business for the gender sex, and of a that they need not lose their taste for the finer things of life in this humble employment. I have known a woman can not only make a good living, it is she is trained for it a small closely observe all the details and attend to the work. Experience has taught them that it was not a success, as they very soon began to trade on the supposed incapability of women as business managers and tried to deceive them by changing a for work which was never done. Their farms, which aggregated 4,200 acres, were inherited from their father, John D. Gillett, a well known man in Plumas county at the time of his death, nine years ago. The young women are practical agriculturists, having picked up much of their knowledge going over the farms with their father, and yet they are finely educated, speak French, and have a taste for art, literature and music.

They devoted their entire time to the farms for the first few years after they assumed the management, and now the land yields to them as much as it did at the time of their father's death. Corn is their principal product, and the average yield is 60 bushels an acre. They have cultivated a lake of 400 acres by digging a ditch a mile and a half long. The farms are divided into small sections, which are filled by tenants with whom they divide the crops. These women ride 30 and 40 miles a day on their tours of inspection, which are not at all tiring, so the tenants have no way of knowing that they are coming. Mr. Gillett's daughters are no work women, but they are a fine lot of the girls, and they are very intelligent and quite a high in the business, and they are all the same in all the same way. They are all the same in all the same way. They are all the same in all the same way.

The Fashionable Cashmere.
It is said that in her day the Empress Josephine wished a new, softly draping textile, extremely fine in weave and with a silky luster. The manufacturers made a study of her order, and the result was the invention of cashmere, beloved by Frenchwomen to this day, and just now favored by fashion everywhere. The material was said to be uniquely suited to the perfect figure of the empress, at once Greek and creole, and it is still adopted where special effects in drapery are desired. A soft gray cashmere is particularly becoming to clear complexioned brunettes with color. Made up with a soft white silk vest and a little handsome silver and opal trimming, the complementary effect of the tint is greatly enhanced. The skin if not perfectly white looks much clearer in contrast with a soft gray tone and gives a more youthful appearance to the wearer than any sort of a fall black dress possibly could, no matter how elegant or elaborate it is trimmed. For a few or other small accessories in pink often render a gray dress extremely becoming to either fair or dark women, and again a small amount of rich velvet and some handsome deep cream lace work a miracle on a somewhat trying gray toilet. Of course judgment must be exercised, and when the figure is large it is unwise to emphasize its outline by wearing light colors in any material whatsoever. Gray cashmere suits too easily to be considered useful wear by many, but with ordinary care this objection cannot be raised. It is less inclined to show marks than certain shades of green, mauve or blue. The new double faced cashmores are this spring made into extremely handsome gowns for both outdoor and indoor wear. Black, gray, green and ruby velvet ribbons are used upon dressy gray gowns, and lace insertions, gimps and accordion plaited chiffons on gray evening toilets.—New York Post.

Suffrage Women as Mothers.
I regret to differ with my valued kinsman, Dr. Walter Channing, in his argument against woman suffrage. It seems to me that the logical foundation for his plea is wanting, and for this reason, that, while he complains that women do not sufficiently do their duty as mothers, he does not adduce one fact to show that women who perform public functions or advocate woman suffrage are liable in any special manner to this charge. From experience much longer than his I should judge the contrary. My old friend, John G. Whittier, used to give me one reason for the support of woman suffrage his lifelong observation of the better women. Among them, he said, there were those who were most eminent in the service of the community. His solution was that the same conscientiousness and mental capacity which fitted them for the one sphere fitted them for the other also. This has, at any rate, been my own observation as to the women of the country. I have many of the best segments of the community, bygone and present, been due to them, but their public service and success as mothers have been almost always a matter of course. In the course of time of leaders, beginning with John Milton and continuing through Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Lucy Stone, Maria W. Chapman, Julia Ward Howe, Mary Livermore and many others, their home holds and their children have been their first and best training. But there have been any very marked exceptions. I may be very sure that it would have been proclaimed in a thousand households.

There is, no doubt, a general tendency in the English and under the pressure of the time, to give influence which the late John Appleton called "the whip of the sky," to overlook and attempt to do much, but I do not see the smallest evidence that this has any particular bearing on the present relation or on the relation of the future. A Bank President
W. N. BECKWITH, OF BUDA, ILLINOIS,
SUFFERING FROM AN OLD INJURY.
Causes a Serious Complication of Diseases—a Successful Business Man—His Opinions Always Accepted—What He Says Regarding a Well-known Remedy.

From the Republican, Princeton, Ill.
Mr. W. N. Beckwith, of Buda, Ill., is a man who is very well known in Bureau County. He came to Illinois in 1855, and ever since, has been known as an active business man, popular with all, for his positive integrity and honor. His opinions have always been accepted with the highest regard, and he has a life to look back upon that is filled with deeds of well doing.
Of late years Mr. Beckwith has been in retirement from actual business. For a number of years he was president of the Buda Bank and enjoyed the confidence of the entire community. Mr. Beckwith says that about five years ago his health became so bad that he felt he must retire, and besides he was getting well along in years, and believed the younger generation should have a chance.
Some years ago, when quite young, Mr. Beckwith suffered a slight accident during play, and ever since that time he has been troubled with hemorrhages of the lungs. The long continuance of this trouble soon brought on others such as inflammatory rheumatism and heart trouble. Mr. Beckwith, when the reporter called to learn how he was progressing, "is a wonder I'm not dead, seventy-one years old too. You won't find many men of my age who have withstood for years such complication of diseases as mine. The doctors have told me many a time that they have never seen anything like it; I know it is so, for I understand it pretty well myself. Of course from such a complication my system finally became greatly run down. The greatest trouble I have had is in keeping my food down. The assimilation was very poor and under the most favorable circumstances, I could not take much nourishment."
"I forget who it was—some one of my old business acquaintances—who told me of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had also read a great deal about them in the newspapers, and one day did come very near sending for a box of the pills, but it finally slipped my mind. It never occurred to me again until my friend asked me why I didn't try them? He was very enthusiastic over them, knowing so many cases that had been cured by their use."
"I became interested finally, and upon going to town again, bought a box of the Pink Pills. I didn't look for any immediate results at all. Knowing so well my serious condition, I knew that even the very best and most applicable remedy, whatever it was, must be used very thoroughly and scientifically to obtain the best results. I began taking the pills at once. I noticed no results whatever until I had taken nearly a box of them."
"First, I noticed that I was eating more than I usually did. Furthermore, I realized it, and became hungry much oftener. I told my wife that this alone was worth everything to me. But it wasn't all, for, besides taking more heartily, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did just what I had been wishing so heartily I could get some medicine to accomplish. They succeeded in so soothing my stomach that my food stayed where it ought to."
"After using two boxes of these pills I ascertained that the tone of my system was much better. I felt almost like a new man. I slept better than I had for years, and felt better in the morning. Instead of getting down town once a day I managed to get down twice. My friends all remarked that I was looking remarkably well for a man of my years. I wasn't well yet, by any means, I knew that. But I was better, I felt greatly encouraged."
"All this time, Mr. Beckwith, did you notice any good effects of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills on your heart?"
"Oh yes, indeed I did. I noticed a very marked effect in that direction. Formerly, my heart had been acting very irregularly and I now noticed that this had greatly diminished. The muscular rheumatism had also become lessened, and altogether I felt as if I was going to get well. I continued the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, satisfied that if it proved to be good, much was better and so it proved to be."
"I have taken about eighteen boxes of them; extending over a period of a year and a half, and you don't know how much better my body is nourished. I sleep and eat regularly, my stomach bothers me no more, and I believe I am on the gain every day. In the use of a remedy for such a disease as mine, the regular, continual use is of the utmost importance to my way of thinking."
"My success with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills has been much more than I had anticipated, for I had tried so many things that I well-nigh useless to further experiment. I feel very kindly toward the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. who handle the Pink Pills, for they have done everything for me."
Mr. Beckwith is a remarkably well looking man, for his age, and the reporter during the day, heard a number of inquiries about how he was getting on with the pills. His case appeared to be watched with unusual interest.
Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are an unfailing remedy for all diseases arising from a poor and watery condition of the blood, such as pale and sallow complexion, general muscular weakness, loss of appetite, depression of spirits, lack of ambition, anemia, chlorosis or green sickness, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath on slight exertion, coldness of hands or feet, swelling of the feet and limbs, pain in the back, nervous headache, dizziness, loss of memory, feebleness of will, ringing in the ears, early decay, all forms of female weakness, leucorrhoea, early or irregular periods, suppression of menses, hysteria, paralysis, locomotor ataxia, rheumatism, sciatica, all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood, causing scrofula, swollen glands, fever, scurvy, rickets, hip-joint disease, lumbago, acquired deformities, decayed bones, chronic erysipelas, catarrh, consumption of the bowels and lungs, and also for invigorating the blood and system when broken down by overwork, worry, disease, excesses and acute diseases, such as fevers, etc., loss of vital powers, general debility, early decay, premature old age. These pills are not a purgative medicine. They contain nothing that could injure the most delicate system. They act directly on the blood, supplying it to the blood its highest quality, by adding to it red corpuscles, that great supporter of all organic life. In this way the blood, becoming "built up" and being supplied with its lacking constituents, becomes rich and red, nourishes the various organs, stimulating them to activity in the performance of their functions, and thus eliminates diseases from the system."
These Pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and wrapper at 25 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and are never sold by or shown by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company. The price at which these pills are sold makes a course of treatment imperative as compared with other remedies.
